Appomattox Forms Health Advisory Committee

Approximately fifteen (15) Appomattox County residents met Tues., June 4, to discuss health problems important to the County at a workshop sponsored by the Central Virginia Health Planning Council. Lt. J. L. Hedrick, Appomattox County governmental representative to the Health Planning Council, opened the meeting and explained the role of the Health Planning Council in meeting the County's health needs. At the recommendation of Mr. Paul M. Morrison, Executive Director of the Council, the workshop group decided to form an Appomattox County Health Advisory Committee to assist and advise the Health Planning Council on important area concerns.

Mrs. Shirley W. Walton, VPI Extension Agent, was nominated as the chairwoman of the Advisory Committee.

Mrs. Walton led a discussion of Home Health Services in the workshop. One of the major problems identified was the lack of public awareness of this program. Mrs. Helen McCraw, Appomattox Department of Social Services, thought that most people considered Home Health Care of the Public Health Department to be only a "medically indigent" service. This service is available to all residents regardless of income.

Mrs. Walton and the group identified other types of resources that could be started in Appomattox County, such as a sitter service.

Mrs. Jacqueline Robinson, a registered nurse with the school system, was the group leader of the discussion on Primary or Ambulatory eaith Care. Dr. Jack Mathews indicated that the basic problem in preimary care is the lack of broad health education to raise the level of family awareness on the necessity of preventive health care. The group talked about ways to reach all families in an overall health education program that builds on the family structure to solve existing health problems. The group also discussed access to health care and the problems of the poor and near - poor have reaching available health services. The group also discussed mobile diagnostic and

Travel Increases To Historical Park -1945

With the recent lifting of some emergency energy measures, the motoring public seems to be returning to many of its old driving habits. While traffic safety organizations pointed to better road conditions during the energy crunch, the travel industry is hoping for an increase in business now that fuel is more available. The following excerpt is taken from the Historic Park's monthly superintendent's report for August 1945. Not only is it appropriate reading in these nostalgic times but makes us realize that times are not changing as much as they seem to be.

News of cessation of hostilities in the Pacific seemed to send many people into a state of delirium, they took to the roads

Meeting in regular session last week, members of the Appomattox County School Board adopted an annual and five-year plan to meet the Standards of Quality and Objectives program enacted by the General Assembly of Virginia for the 1972-74 Biennium.

The program enacted gave clear and specific directions to local school divisions relative to specific standards to establish and objectives to achieve. Standards were established in three broad areas of personnel, program, and planning and management. Objectives were established in areas of performance related to pupils and programs, individual school planning and management and classroom planning and management.

In the development of the goals for the Appomattox County School Division, the goals and the specific needs of the local student population provided direction. Many groups, committees and individuals had opportunities for input in the development of the following goals: 1. To have each student learn the basic skills of reading, writing, and arithmetic which are commensurate with his stage of maturity and ability. 2. To provide each student with the proper academic background for higher education and/or to provide him with the skills and knowledge necessary for employment and desirable living. 3. To have each student acquire a sense of personal worth and dignity. 4. To have each student continued to raise money.

And raise it they did! The check presented to Mr. Hogan on Monday was for the amount of $1212.10. These ladies not only reached but passed their goal. They would like to thank everyone who helped in so many ways to make this worthwhile project a big success and they also suggest that local civic organizations try the same ides . . . the money is needed and the effort that goes into such a project is quite rewarding.

tions that lead to responsible participation in our democratic society. 5. To develop in each student a basic understanding and appreciation of people of different nationalities, cultures and ethnic groups and their contributions to the development of our nation and our culture. 7. To provide for each student a program which will enable him to acquire and develop personal habits which lead to desirable physical, mental and emotional health. 8. To have each student develop an awareness of the aesthetic realm of life and a realization of its importance in his daily life.

The eight broad general goals for the school division served as a guide for the State goals and the specific assessment. From this assessment developed fourteen performance objectives upon which the annual and five-year plan was developed.

The fourteen objectives are as follows: 1. Workers Donate To Cobalt Machine

A group of ladies employed at the Appomattox Garment Company, Division I, Unit III, on Monday presented a donation to Lynchburg General Hospital to be used toward the purchase of a cobalt machine planned for installation within the next two years.

Just a few weeks ago, this group of young ladies decided to try and raise $200.00 to be donated to Lynchburg General, in the name of one fellow employee who has cancer and has to travel to Charlottesville for her cobalt treatments, to apply toward the purchase of a cobalt machine that is in future plans for the hospital and will be included in their building addition.

Starting out with "sucessful" bake sales, car washes, rummage sales, and "passing a box" for donations at both the Appomatox Garment Company's sewing plant and Amelia Dress Company, the ladies raised their initial goal to $500.00 - then set the goal at $1,000.00 and
